the Samoan Islands.

FIRST REPORTS CONFIRMED.

The Storm Cost a Hundred and Fifty Lives and Three Million Dollars

Francisco, April 14.—After the storm of Germany has been visited by a disaster March the sixteenth had subsided and more appalling than all the wars ever after the officers and crews of the waged here. In attempting to affect a wrecked wessels had come ashore the solution of the Samoan difficulty and to The officers had lost their uniforms and were dressed as common sailors. Admiral Kimberly was the last to leave the American flagship Trenton. He went at once to some rooms which had been provided for him in a house of an American resident. The Associated Press correspondent found the Admiral a few hours later sitting on one of the porches of a small house facing the harbor. There was an expression of great anxiety on his face as he sat watching the wreck of the American men-of-war.

"Is it not awiul?" he remarked to the correspondent. "In all my experience on sea, I have never seen a storm to equal this one. I can hardly realize yet the full extent of damage which has

The Admiral was asked in regard to his experience during the storm, but he had little to say of a personal nature. He continued:

"The fires of the Trenton went out at 10 o'clock in the morning and our rudder and propeller were carried away at the same time. No one can realize the force with which the rudder was struck. I suppose a piece of wreckage fouled it. The pilot wheel whirled around with terrible velocity, every spoke in it was broken, and one of the men at the wheel had a leg broken. The pilot wheel whirled around with terrible velocity, every spoke in it was broken, and one of the men at the wheel had a leg broken. The great volumes of water poured in upon the berth deck through the hawse-pipes fire room which soon flooded and the fires were put out. The hawse-pipes should never have been placed where they were. It was a piece of faulty construction which Government officials had been asked to remedy several times. If at the same point. It was not the little German gunboat, Eiber, that the greatest loss of life occurred. The Fiber had a complement of six officers and list of s

The Admiral spoke feelingly of the death of Captain Schoonmaker and other officers and men who perished.
Confusion was present everywhere in Apia during the first few days after the storm had disappeared at the end of the week. The quarters of the ship wrecked sailors had been made more comfortable, men were to be seen. The town is still under marine guard in charge of Captain Huntington, and Mataafa's police have also assisted in maintaining order. The men from the Trenton and Vandalia have formed a barracks and have ecceted temporary tents for shelter. The Nipsic men are still living aboard their vessel, and the German survivors are quartered in a warehouse belonging to a German firm. Working parties are kept busy all the time on the wrecks of the Trenton and Vandalia, and articles of every description have been brought ashore from the vessels and piled together in a large yard. Divers have been at work and many articles were saved in that way. The safes from both vessels containing large amounts of money were recovered.

The Monongahela and Mohican are expected to arrive here soon. King Malieto came down from his camp a few days ago. A light rain had fallen the night before and the water had leaked into many of the tents occupied by sallors. Mataafa pointed out to Admiral Kimberly the danger of sickness breaking out among the men on account of this exposure, and on behalf of his own people, he offered to vacate all the Sanonn houses in Apia and allow the American sallors to have the use of them. Admiral Kimberly thanked warmly, but stated to him that it would be almost impossible to control the man if they were scattered around among the native houses. There is

The officers and men of the Vandalia lost nearly everything. A great many on the Trenton fared but little better. The officers are scattered all over town, and have secured such accommodations as they can find. Many are living in native houses.

The storm does not seem to have changed the political situation of Samoa, so far as the natives are concerned. Both the partles are still encamped in the same positions they have occupied.

Both the parties are still encamped in the same positions they have occupied for several months past. Matana's men have not given the slightest intimation of which is visible at low water, extending the parties are still encamped in the northern size of the nor for several months past. Matanar's men have not given the slightest intimation that they intended to take advantage of the unprepared condition of the Germans, and it is not thought they will make any attack upon Tamassee's force pending the German conference. The German Consul, Dr. Knappe, is still gateway for ships to enter the harbor. The space within this rest, where ships pursuing a spiteful course, which has the space within this rest, where ships can list at anchor, is yery small.

When the lighting entered the dwelling it lighted both sides, so that it looked as though the whole house was enveloped in flames. The Houser family were sitting at the table in the dining room, eating supper at the time. Mrs. Houser was stunned by the shock and fell to the floor. A neighbor rushed into the house, and discovering that the carpet and bedclothes were on fire, soon had it extinguished.
